that I do not? Let him accompany me home.
Let me confront him with my wife and seventeen children, and decide.

High as the Hocky mountains tower above the Mississippi valley, does the character of the married man tower above that of the bachelor. What is a bachelor? What was Adam before he get acquainted with Eve? What but a poor, shiftless, helpless, insignificant creature? No more to be compared with his after-self, than a mill-dam to the great roaring cataract of Niagura. (Applause.)

Gentlemen, there was a time, I blush to say it, when I too was a bachelor; and a more miserable creature you would hardly expect to find. Every day I toiled hard, and at night I came home to my comfortless garret—no carpet, no fire, no nothing. Everything was in a clutter, and in the words of the poet—
